Message to Parents:

We believe Scouting is the best program available to develop physical, mental, social, and spiritual values in young people. An independent study by Louis Harris & Associates verified our beliefs. Parents said that after one year in Cub Scouts:

- ❖ Their sons learned to stay away from drugs, and to help at home;
- ❖ Scouting encouraged family togetherness through projects, going places, and talking with each other; and,
- ❖ Scouting provided a safe and friendly environment and created a sense of belonging, and that their sons learned to get along better with others.

We invite you to accompany your son to School Night to Join Scouting. You will meet current Scouts and adult leaders and other parents and their sons who are joining. You will also learn more about upcoming activities and programs.

Today's youth may have different needs than you had as a child, but one thing is still true: they need time with you. Scouting provides a pre-packaged program that helps you maximize the benefit of time spent with your son.

Cub Scouting: A family program

Scouting is a family- and neighborhood-based program, with a goal of helping each parent with their son's development of strong values and a healthy mind and body. It provides a positive way for a parent and son to grow closer together.

With more than 4 million youth members, the Boy Scouts of America is one of the most popular youth-serving organizations. Boys join Scouting for one primary reason-to have fun! While boys have great experiences in Scouting, they do much more than have fun. Boys who are Scouts learn lessons about life, and the value of being a responsible person of character and integrity. These lessons come through spending significant time and sharing experiences with families, Scout leaders, and fellow Scouts.
